AGRICULTURE: Stormy Weather

Unseasonal snowstorms and flood waters sweeping through the great menaced sheep and cattle and retarded field work, but promised re-Hef to some of Nebraska's winter wheat plantings, needing moisture.

Because of a shortage of protein feeds through the winter, stockmen feared cattle would be hard pressed by the wet, heavy snowfall and attendant cold weather. In eastern Colorado, heavy culf and lamb losses were reported as a result of n deep snowfall that extended to Wyoming and New Mexico.

In Illinois, farmers prepared to move their stock to higher ground In the Sangamon river valley as lowlands flooded, and downstream at Beardstown, townsfolk anxiously scanned the water gauge as the crest of the Illinois river rose near the 20-foot mark.

Also as of April 1, wheat stocks totaled 217,684,000 bushels against 325,387,000 a year ago, and oats supplies stood at 418,255,000 bushels against 709,170,000 as of January 1,

With farmers selling hogs in the largest volume in the country's history, weights received at the seven biggest markets have averaged 13 pounds less than in April, 1943.

PACIFIC:

India in Spotlight

In the Pacific area, the spotlight continued focused on India, where British and Indian troops fought with desperation to check the Jap's steady advance on the all-Important Bengal-Assam railroad supplying Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's U. S. and Chinese forces in northern Burms.

While the fighting in India flared to new intensity. U S. bombers ranged the length of the Pacific, hammering at enemy installations on the Kurile islands to the north of Japan, and blasting the foe's extablishments at Truk, doorway to the Nips' major Asiatic holdings.

Bitter fighting in India occurred In the mile-high Naga hills where the Japa were closest to the vital Bengal-Assam railroad, and equally hard fighting went on to the south near Imphal, where rolling plains allowed the use of tanks

AUTO GUTPUT:

Waits on War

Sitting together in Washington, D. the War Production board huddled over plans for future resumption of civilian auto output, with emphasis on partial manufacture following the defeat of either Germany or Japan.

With the industry's manpower situation easing and companies fearing wholesale unemployment when munitions production tapers off, the executives returned to their plants to take under study requirements of materials, space and tools for resuming civilian output, and the time that would be needed to get machinery and set it up.

Although no quotas for different manufacturers were discussed, some executives favored a production of 2,000,000 cars during the early stages.

U. S. OIL:

Possibilities of new discoveries and more efficient production methods should assure the U.S. of sufficient oil for the future, Socony-Vacuum President John A. Brown told stockholders during the course of a report on 1943 operations of the company, showing a profit of $5,944,983,

Besides discoveries from ordinary explorations and wildcat drilling, Brown said, additional crude oil should become available through better production technique and secondary recovery methods. At prices no higher than the average dealers' prices of 1918-22, exclusive of taxation, gas can be produced from coal, Brown declared.

CHICKS:

Record Number

A record number of chicks were hatched in commercial plants during March in the face of a sharp decline in the price of eggs. Estimated autput is 284,915,000, compared with the previous high mark of 274,953,000 in 1943. For the first three months of this year, however, total number of baby chicks was 1.3 per cent below last year.

The break in egg prices caused considerable cancellation of orders for young chickens, dealers said, and a surplus of chicks for March was reported from most sections of the country.

House of Representatives Decides Against Spending Taxpayers' Money on Food for School Children After July 1.

You have often heard the lament when guests came and the larder was bare: "If we only had some ham and had some eggs, we could have ham and eggs." If we had the man power and the machinery, equipment and distribution, we could step up American food production until, by 1954, we could feed 380 million people. That is what the Department of Agriculture says. Last year, we raised enough to feed 170 million.

Today, Washington is worrying over two problems brought into focus by that little "if."

This time we have over-production of one food product: eggs, Government agents are hurrying around trying to find a means of absorbing them. America has more eggs than were ever laid on these fair shores in our history, enough to have rolled some on the White House lawn on Easter Monday if the President had permitted such a wastage, which he wouldn't.

The government is buying eggs right and left (600 thousand cases of she?' eggs, 13 million pounds of powdered aggs since January 1) to support the farmer's price, and giving some away - and here is where problem number two, which I said Washington was worrying about, comes in. We are giving away eggs to state and federal institutions and also for school lunches. After July 1. school lunches, supported by the federal government, will be no more if the senate follows the action of the house and refuses the appropriation for that purpose. And regardless of eggs, there is developing the other situation over which certain people in Washington are worried. I'll go into that later, but first, let us look at the egg glut.

We are told that we could feed a lot more people if we had the man as a twig is bent the tree is inpower, equipment and machinery to clined, furnishing a balanced lunch Continuing its policy of keeping produce the food. In the case of eggs, we could consume far more eating habits which will affect the If we had the man power to run new charter rates for vessels taken the drying equipment to produce the that how that so many schools, espepowdered eggs for the military cially in rural areas, have been conforces and lend-lease although those charter fee of $1.25 per deadweight institutions now consume 400 million ton per month will be paid for use pounds of egg-powder a year, and of the vessel, with all operating ex- eggs run about three dozen to one

About Hen Power

In this case, the man power doesn't match the hen power. A contraption called a cyclone drier dries eggs. All you have to do is to crack old vessels, a basic level of $56.25 the egg and drop it into a container per deadweight ton will be paid, and let the artificial breezes blow, but it's hard to get crackers. One Kansas City drier who has a wage celling of 50 cents an hour for his erackers, has to compete with an airplane plant in the neighborhood Piloted by the Transcontinental which has a 50 cents an hour celland Western Air President Jack ing, for work no less attractive to young ladies than breaking eggs.

Right now, the country boasts the biggest hen population it ever had and egg production is 80 per cent higher than it was just before the war. Ever since March, something has gotten into the hens that has made them step up their production - feed was supposed to be hard to get so it couldn't have been something they atc. Maybe it's just pairfolism. Anyhow, the War Food administration is buying all the eggs it can, and now it is giving eggs to schools for school lunches and to state and federal institutions. not entirely because it has a genthe shark-shaped Constellation car- erous heart but because it wants to support the price to the farmer who (as usual) hasn't been getting the benefit of the retail prices which, in many places, have stayed up even in the face of the greater supply. Washington, however, was able to buy eggs for the Easter rabbit this year, 18 cents a dozen cheaper than they were in March. This egg glut has brought into sharp focus the school-lunch question which is of considerable concern to the Office of Education as well as the War Food administration.

The present laying spree of the hens will not last forever, and there will be no eggs to throw around later on. And anyhow, the house of representatives has decided that even if there were a surplus of eggs and other food products, it does not approve of spending the taxpayers' money on school lunches even if a month."

Sounds like magic, doesn't it? But, scientists say, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN can really "get at" a common cause of constipation — lack of dietary "cellulosic" ele-ments—because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements! They help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic contents for easy elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Doesn't "sweep you out"! It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If you have constitution of this kind, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, or several ALL-BRAN muffins regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find real relief. Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

If you know a Navy man, don't ever call him a "gob"-sailors consider the name an insult. You can get on the right side of him though if you offer him a Camel -or better yet, send him a carton. Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in the Navy (Army, Marines, Coast Guard, too, for that matter) based on actual sales records from the service men's stores. And though there are Post Office retrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. Tom must deliver 3,000 longhorns to the Indian agent by Sept. 1 or lose a profitable contract. Lew suspects that the Indian Supply Co. is trying to delay the Cross T. Tom Arnold is killed during a stampede, CLAY MANNING and ED SPLANN dispute Lew's authority, and Lew discharges Splann. Lew hears from the soldiers at Doan's store that the Indians are being incited to raiding. They cross into Indian Territory. A party of Cheyennes demand 600 cattle.

CHAPTER XIII

Over his corn-meal bread and ward the cook's wagon with only a curious interest. Steve was over it was Joy that Clay was working on, making something light of it, with his hat pushed back on his blond head and all of his big face showing her an easy reassurance. He could wheedle her when he wanted to, with a sort of concerned gallantry, his blue eyes going momentarily grave.

Then he could see their talk was coming to a decision, and his first feeling that Clay could get nowhere with Joy left him. For she stood briefly with a little frowning doubt, Steve took her arm and spoke to her. She nodded. They tossed their empty plates at the wreck pan and came on toward the fire.

"Well, Lew," Clay said. He brought his eyes around "School's out, Clay. Class dismissed. Sit down," He grinned at

"We've got to know your plan," she said.

"All right. We're turning west at dawn." He held out one hand, palm won't travel in the wet, so we're safe enough tonight. Isn't that about it?" He glanced at the half ring of men to see what backing he would get. Some of them nodded.

"Spoils their feathers," said Rebel "They'll stay under cover

"Then we can count on that. If the rain holds tomorrow we can make better than twenty miles to the west. We'll be close to the Texas panhandle by that time. It's thin safety, I know, but we can call on v if we have trouble off of Indian lands." .

"Army!" Clay mocked. "You got any idea where that is?" "There's a troop," he said, "at Doan's Crossing. I'm sending a man back tonight." "That all you got?" Clay asked. "That's all, Keep moving. Except we can make a fight of it if we have to."

"Sure. Against six hundred Indians! "Eleven men," he pointed out,

"held off more than that at Adobe Walls. But there won't be six hundred bucks. Half of any tribe are squaws." He lenned back on his elbows. He needn't go on with an argument, and yet he wanted Clay to show his hand.

It came forced out with heat. where none was called for, as if Clay needed that fire of temper to bolster him up. "You're right about turning west. But the herd travels too slow. We'll send the wagons on ahead."

"What about splitting the men?" he asked. "You can't divide this outfit now. You'd have no proteclion anywhere."

"Then send plenty with the wagons. Make sure of that. It's Joy I'm thinking about!"

Maybe, Yet Clay's plan boiled down simply to abandoning the herd. He grinned dryly. "Why not all go with the wagons? Let the But there was a thing behind Joe Cheyennes take the cows."

"Lew," Steve put in, "Clay's right! Lew gave the boy a long straight look. "Steve," he said gently, "you know better than that. You stand there in your dad's boots and tell me to desert four thousand longhorns at the first scare of Indians. You've got more reason than you're telling. That's plain enough. No man with any honest sense would split his crew here or run off either. I won't." "Then I guess." Steve said fintly, "a showdown's come. Hate to do it, Lew. Clay's taking charge." Lew stood up. "By owner's vote?" That's It."

Of the three this turn seemed to hit Steve the worst. For Clay's reactions were slow at times. His head came up. He stood like a huge bull swelling with his rage.

It burst, from him with the madness of one hardly knowing what he said. "This changes nothing!"

"Clay," he said, "that's enough." He could feel the scar across his check begin to itch and burn, "You call this a showdown. All right, let's show! Something happened before the start that's made you want to block this herd from going north. Now you think you've got your chance. You'd make Joy an excuse to let it go. Want to hear why? The Open A is coming up behind us. If we lose our herd to the Cheyennes they'll pass with no trouble. There's a stacked deal for you! It's all you want."

He saw Joy's face down beside his shoulder turn from anger to up. "Here's rain coming. Indians shocked disbelief. She stared at Clay, drew back from both of them suddenly, holding them both with darkly bitter eyes. Without speaking she walked with rigid steps toward her wagon.

riding guard in your place. You're going back to Doan's." He picked up his saddle, carrying it on to the night-guard horses. "We haven't come more than seventy miles. You can make it by daylight and lead the troop back. They sald they wouldn't give me any help in the Nations, but they've got a young lieutenant. He'll come when he

So far away that at first he hardly caught it, looking like a part of the Miss Debutante's Career brown earth, a darker spot of brown was moving.

He yelled and crooked his arm at the dragmen. They jumped their mounts into a run toward his side of the point. Quarternight loped around to him. Moonlight Bailey and young Jim Hope began to drive the leading horse herd back.

He waved the wagons over, and under that pressure of mules and horses and men the point began to swing. Gradually four thousand longborns were turning back upon themselves, until they made a great letter U. And then the gap closed as the leaders joined the drags. There had been no confusion to give them a scare. They milled only a little and came to a stop in their compact pool. It had taken perhaps ten minutes' time.

Dame May has brushed shoulders and opinions with newsworthy headiners, from princes to presidents, for the past decades. Her "political career," if you can call it that, dates, back to a London party given by Mabel Terry, niece of the famous stage star Ellen Terry. Women's suffrage was just beginning to take form, and the conversation began drifting toward the suffragets.

Goodness Gracious!

"How," went the general trend of talk, "could women lose their selfrespect to such an extent? Where was their pride? Of what were they thinking?'

It was at this point that Dame May Whitty began to think, deeply and sanely. The more she thought the more she agreed with the movement. Suddenly she found herself defending the group.

"Why, I actually think you are a suffraget," Mabel Terry remarked with surprise.

"I believe I am," answered Dame This marked a turning point in her

Practicality

Uncommon pieces of machinery, some of a secret nature, built in the last two years to make implements of war now occupy uncounted acres of floor space in American factories. The tools belong to the government. The factories are privately owned. They used to turn out things as peaceful us plows, pencils and planes and they hope to do the same things again, soon.

Senator Harry S. Truman of Missouri, in a speech in New York not long ago, suggested that the government towner of the tools) ought to hurry up and price-tag the ones it would be willing to sell when the war is over. After that, he pointed out, manufacturers now using the tools can decide which ones they can use profitably and afford to buy for peacetime work.

A Wise Suggestion

Think of the moving and wrecking and time-killing palaver this would save. I respect all leaders who are down-to-carth and I am convinced that Truman is not raitled. The very bigness of this emergency tempts us sametimes to look the other way and abrink from facts that concern us vitally. I suspect that some of our leaders get weak knees occasionally from hearing their jobs called colossal. I am not suggesting that any of us lower our nights; but I do believe that if we are to see motters of world and national import clearly, we must scale them down to our size and see what they mean to us and our neighbors. If they don't make cense on that basis, perhaps they den't make sense at all. Money matters provide an excellent exam-

Parm Prosperity

One well-established fact is very handy for measuring national economy in terms of family pocketbook. Here's the fact: When factory workers have money, farmers are prospercus and most honest people fare well. Right now, due to war inot to sound thinking), American labor is fully employed and well paid. Parmers are prospering because the workers have extra money and live

Nobedy needs a crystal ball to see that this will change when war ends unless semething is done about it. Now, if you were the government, responsible for all these things that can delay the whole of reconversion, I hope you would shoo away all the big grisly fears and think first of your sons and brothers quitting the service and looking for a Job; also about that war-working neighbor. What's to become of him?

Will your own job end with the war? If so, can you go back to your old one? Farmer, if you are specialtring in some war crop, what will you raise in peacetime? Automobile dealer, how soon will you get cars to sell! Magutacturer, when will your government contracts be settled and your floors cleared of warworking machinery? Can you get busy before your competitor hires away your best men and grabs your markets?

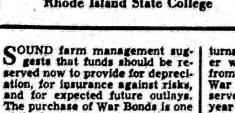

Face the Facia Straight-thinking citizens will not say matters like this are in the hands of super-men with superminds. They are not! Government men are only men, and all their authority comes from the people. Nothing helps good leaders more than approval from thinking voters. I hope Genater Trumen gets plenty of support for his commonscore proposal. It is all surely help the machinery industry.

that, of more importance than that, the Cenatur knows what's good for the farmers of blussest in the past wor slamp. He and his osen-ciates have a plan for terminating war contracts to such a way so to keep collectrial workers busy and carned movey after the war, and it cerds to encreed if America is to been to line the engention in such fictions.

War Bonds and the Farmer

by J. L. Tennant Head, Dept. of Agricultural Economics Rhode Island State College of the best ways to conserve such savings. Every experienced farmer knows he must keep buildings in repair, and that machinery wears out or becomes obsolete. In our present crisis, many of the outlays needed to maintain the farm plant must be deferred. The lumber, minerals and chemicals now produced and our skilled and unskilled labor must be used to produce foods and fibre, build ships, make airplanes, and provide the other goods and services essential to the prosecution of the war.

As our farm machinery gets older, as buildings go without painting, and with minimum attention to other repairs, these needs grow. When the war is over, our industries again will make civillan goods. Saving money and building a reserve through the purchase of War Bonds now, will enable a farmer to buy the equipment and the other goods and services which then will be avail-

Savings Are Beneficial

The savings from current income should include funds to replace household equipment and furnishings, to buy new equip-ment, and to install a water system, a central heating plant, electricity, or some other service which will add to the convenience and comfort of family living.

A back-log in War Bonds will help to carry the farm business through a year in which expenses exceed the returns. . Farming is subject to many hazards. A few of the risks are price changes, unfavorable weather, the outbreak of dicease, the attack of a destructive insect, and the sudden illness of the operator. Growers of each crops know that prices vary from year to year. Savings set aside during years when prices are relatively high, will help to carry the business through a year when returns are small. A potato grow-er who put part of his receipts from the 1942 and 1943 crops into War Bonds will find such a re-serve is extremely helpful in a year of low prices. A few hundred dollars in War Bonds are very useful when the farm family faces an emergency as a result of a serious illness or accident. In planning for the future of the family or the business, each farm operate; will find reserves for a specific purpose are desirable. With one it will be a provision for the education of children; with another funds for retirement may be important. With a young man especially, such reserves will furnish the first payment for the purchase of a farm. A farmer who owns the land he operates will find such a fund useful if and when an appartunity to purchase additional develops.

Saving Time Varies

The time of the year when mon-ey to buy War Bonds is available varies with the type of farming. On dairy farms income usually is received monthly or semimonthly. The expenses of the poultry farmer are heavy during the months that chickens are being raised. Producers of cash crops have large outlays during the planting and growing season.

But depreciation is continuous. Therefore, irrespective of the type of farming, definite provision should be made to reserve in War Bonds part of the receipts from sales of crops, livestock, or livestock products.

United States War Bonds may be bought in various amounts and are redeemable. For every $3.00 invested, $4.00 will be returned at the end of 10 years. They are safe. The interer: 1 ate compares favorably with that from savings deposits. Investing in War Bonds helps to finance the war. Following the war, such savings will pro-vide the farm operator with the cash to buy improvements for his farm and home; to educate his children; and to do the other things which he or his family wish to undertake, at a time when loans may be difficult to obtain.

GEORGIA FARMER QUITS IN DISGUST

Overcome by what he termed the red tape of government bureaucracy, James H. Wylie, Rome, Georgia, merchant and farmer, is abandoning his fertile 1.500 acre farm near Vincent, Alabama.

"I think it's a hell of a note," he said, "when I have to pay taxes to be put out of business and stop producing at a time when food is needed perhaps as never before and when the agricultural department is plerding with the farmers to pro-duce on the largest possible scale.

"Bureaucracy has got the agricul-tural population so hopeless," en-tangled in red tape that unles, drastic reforms are put thru promptly the food problem will become more serious than it is, and it's bad enough now." Wylie said he is getting rid of his herd of 250 beef cattle, for which he will be unable to grow feed. In-stead of the 10 to 20 men he once hird to work on his farm, he said he had only two employees left and told them they "can go fishing." His decision to abandon the farm resulted from trouble he encountered in trying to get a truck to replace the worn out vehicle in which he had oner workers from Fort McClellan, Ala., to agricultural work on his

Some 400 abandoned army trucks stand idle at Fort McClellan, These trucks are in the custody of the treasury department, but efforts to get one have proved unavailing.

The Civil Service Commission reports that in 1910 there was 1 person on the federal government pdy roll for every 264 of national population. After the war expan-sion of 1914-1918, this ratio stood at 1 to 153 in 1920. Liquidation of the war agencies restored a ratio of I to 200 in 1930. Today the figure is 1 to 411

How a Pulpwood Shortage Handicaps the Farmer...

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES WOULD ROT IN THE FIELDS

MILLIONS OF EGGS WOULD NEVER REACH THE MARKET

FEED STOCK AND FERTILIZER WOULD SELL IN BULK ONLY

.. WITHOUT PULPWOOD TO MAKE CONTAINERS

Pulpwood helps the farmer both in the marketing and the planting of his field crops. Feed, fertilizer, seeds and other farm essentials come to the farmer in containers made of pulpwood. Fruits, vegetables, dairy products and other farm produce are packed in pulpwood wraps, liners, and paperboard boxes before they reach the consumer. And most important, pulpwood containers help the farmer feed our armed forces overseas.

Having a Man Around

Bell Syndicate-WNU Features.

Fred took almost as much care of David as I did.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS ERHAPS there are a lot of wives like me," Jay in Germantown. "Or rather, like the wife I was for eleven years -- for I am divorced now. Fred and I were happy for a while; it gives me a sharp heartache now to remember our joy in our first little home and our new baby. Fred took almost as much care of David as I did; we used to take him off on picnics, come home weary and happy and all freshened up, put the baby to bed, and have a couple of friends come in for a pick-up supper and two rubbers of bridge. In those years we made quite a few little business trips together, I loved the trains and the hotels. Fred's free time was always like a holiday, and getting back to little Davy's welcome the best of all.

"About four years ago something began to go wrong. Fred was away often in the evening. I resented it. My mother was living with us. He liked her and she liked him, but I knew she felt that I spoiled him. We got into wordy spain; I couldn't telephone him in the old way and may 'All clear?' because Mother would then smile good-naturedly and say There you go again -

Priction Allowed to Pile Up. "But that wasn't all, of course. We seemed to suffer from complete lack of sympathy. Little things began to jar on us terribly; we pulled apart. Whatever Fred wanted to do seemed to be the exact thing I didn't want to do, whether it was asking house, using money for this purpose or that, keeping some secret or making some remark.

"My mother was living with a widowed moter at this time, and when quite suddenly Fred and I agreed to a divorce, David and I went there. David is now eight, he adores his lather - I want him to. But his culburate of affection and admiration for his father sometimes come at awhward moments, and my sister and mother exchange scornful glances that somer or later he'll understand So I intend to get into quarters of my own as soon as possible. But even that presents difficulties Fred wants David.

"Fred has married again, & nice enough woman ten years older than he who has two little girls. DIVORCE SEQUEL

The woman over whose letter Miss Norris weaves this column has found a greater number of answers to divorce and, as in a great number of the cases where man and wife split, her discoveries have been made-after the estrangement.

And it's usually a pretty bitter sequel to those women who find themselves placed in a similar role. The realization of not knowing "when they were well off" torments them and brings them sharp recriminations over the slight frictions that caused them to part. And there are the children. The divorcee suddenly finds that it was good having a man around. Not only for herself but for the children. And she also finds now that the connubial knot has been untied, that having had one around at one time is not a guarantee that she will acquire another quite as handily.

Yes; if she had it to do over again, she would stick to hubby and the children. She knows now that despite the difficulty of marriage that it has its udvantages. That for a divorced woman to make it alone in the world is not always a bed of roses and that lonesomeness is a dreadful heartache.

As an aftermath she discovers that it was good to have had a man around.

rant bill, and say 'How are you fixed for money, kld?' I like to fuss over this acquaintance or that to the him when he feels sick, and have him fuss over me when I do. I like sharing David, buying presents for both my men at Christmas, planning surprises and trips. A little ionelineas as a wife is better than total loneliness as an unattached female. A faulty human man, 27 per cent selfishness, is better than no man at all. Married Woman Better Off.

"The married woman, whatever her difficulties, has a definite advantage. The divorced woman is cut and humiliated in a thousand ways nobody suspects. There were faults on both sides,' society says kindly, even if the husband beat her, starved her, and threw her into the street 'I'll get a nice man for you, honey," says the hostess, with some Infatuated married lad of 20 in mind, who will talk all evening about his wife, now in the hospital baying a baby. "Worst of all," concludes this letter, "is the little loyal David, with his anxlous, 'When's Dad coming home?' Am I to tell him that Daddy is a cruel stupid failure, or to shut up about Dad?"

So the woman who wrote this letter would perhaps give other wives David hoppy, to have these financial | contemplating divorce the advice I and family defliculties settled, to slwnys do; the advice "Punch" gave in a single monosyllable to the young man about to be marcritical doubtfulness, would make ried: "Don't." Then she finds out what real trouble 15.

Consumers Paying Debis There are increasing signs that American consumers are paying their debts. Latest figures show that the total consumer credit outstand. ing at the end of 1911 has been marked by the sharp decline of 51 per cent. The greatest portion of this strop is accounted for by the shrinkage in installment credit.

The shrinkage is said to indicate that a large postwar market will open for suica, refrigerators, furniture and isquiebuld equipment frequently sold on the installment plan.

Keep to Simplicity In Foods, Serving For Good Hostessing

Create this spring tonic by using almon and asparagus in a custard when eggs are plentiful. Bake in ramekins set in a pan of water, using a moderate oven so that the texture of the custard will be perfect. Hospitality is unrationed even in wartime. Food restrictions curb the serving of claborate meals, but homemakers still want their friends over for a pleasent chat over luncheon or to 'try out something new" in the way of a recipe. Simplicity is the keynote of good entertaining. It doesn't do to try out complicated recipes or menu patterns just to make an impression. If something goes wrong then everything is thrown off schedule and as a result the guests may be made uncomfortable, thus defeating the whole purpose of getting togeth-

Released by Western Newspaper Union. On September 8, 1942, the Illinois Industries for the Blind, incorporated four months earlier as a non-profit organization, opened operations in an old four-story various war industries. structure at 1310 South Newberry St., on Chicago's historic east side.

Established by Edward S. Molineaux, the institution was employment for the blind, partially blind and crippled, rather than the usual devices for passing away time or meriting a dole.

By May 1, 1943 — nine for permanent wave outfits, months after having been assembling wooden doll sets. opened—the success of the Illinois Industries for the Blind was confirmed when the United States maritime commission awarded the plant an "M" pennant for outstanding production of sheets and pillow cases for Liberty ships, the first ever given to an institution of this nature. Six months later, the maritime commission added to the honors with the presentation of a gold star, for bettering the previous production and absentee record.

The enviable performance of the Illinois Industries for the Blind merely established Mr. Molineaux's long-time conviction on the capabilities of the blind, partially blind and crippled if properly encouraged. Partially blind himself, Mr. Molineaux's conclusions probably were inspired by his own experience of over 25 years, dating back to his education at Illinois' Jacksonville State School for the Blind, and his subsequent life work among the sightless.

Leaving Jacksonville, Mr. Molineaux took up the task of placing blind switchboard operators in Illinois, and then he went to the east, where he joined the Brooklyn As- an can put seams in about sociation for Improving Conditions for the Poor. Over 100 years old, this institution specializes in the assistance of the blind and crippled.

Eight Institutions in U. S. Among those in the forefront of the work to restore the blind, partially blind and crippled to useful positions in society, Mr. Molineaux has seen the idea take a slow but sure hold throughout the U. S., where eight such institutions now operate, some under state supervision, others, like the one in Illinois, under private management aided by popular contributions.

The restoration of the sightless and disabled to useful citizenry received its greatest impetus in 1936, when congress passed legislation setting up a list of products for the government to purchase from blind workshops. To facilitate the program, the American Fourdation for the Blind inspired the organization of the National Industries for the Blind, to act as a clearing house for contract, to the various blind Employment for 125. A visit to the Illinois Industries for the Blind plant in Chicago at once Impresses one with the capability of the 125 blind, partially blind and crippled employees. At one time, the factory had a peak employment of 230 people, many of whom have since gone to accept positions in

On all three of the floors, one will find the handicapped busily engaged in different forms of work suited to their capacities, with the blind chiefly employed on jobs where some form of mechanical guides are designed to provide regular provided, the partially blind on objects large enough for their limited sight, and the crippled on tasks not requiring complete freedom of movement.

On the second floor, one sees the blind engaged in folding paper caps for permanent wave outfits, and in

Because the blind could not inspect the finished goods and the bright glare of the white material could not be withstood by the partially blind, full-sighted people are employed for this work.

Since undertaking government work, the Illinois Industries for the Blind has delivered over 2,000,000 sheets and pillow cases to the serv-

Make Wooden Mats.

Up on the fourth floor of the plant, one sees a cripple and the blind combine to produce colored wooden mats under the supervision of a partially blind foreman, Gerard Harold, Canadian born and English educated, who once ran a coffee importing business in Africa, Cut to size by a cripple, the wood-

On the third floor about 40 women turn out sheets and pillow cases at good speed, despite their handicap. After two months of training, a wompillow cases a day. The hemmers, who must have 10 per cent or better vision, can finish about 90 dozen cases daily.

An "electric eye," shown below, protects the operators from injury by stopping the sewing machine when fingers get too close to the necdle and interrupt the beam of light that must shine constantly while the machine is running.

Those proficient in folding paper caps can turn out as many as 986 a day and average around $5.50 for eight hours' work. There is not so much skill required in cap making, as there is a familiarity, or feel, of the paper. Turning from the paper cap folders, one comes to a long assembly line of blind filling little cardboard boxes with parts of wooden dolls, and then packing these along with containers holding different water colors into single sets. Holes in the body of the wooden dolls into which the head, arms and legs are inserted are drilled by blind on mechanical equipment up on the fourth floor of the plant. Ten workers can assemble about 1,000 sets a day.

Sheets and Pillow Cases. One of the most interesting and important of the plant's operations is on the third floor, where blind and partially blind women produce sheets and pillow cases.

Under a full-sighted supervisor, 40 impaired women keep the latest type sewing machines with necessary adjustments buzzing at top speed.

First, there are the women who put seams into the pillow cases, being able to turn out about 66 dozen daily, after two months of training. Machines are equipped with a "secing eye," which stops their operation when the workers' fingers stray too close to the needle. Then there are the hemmers, with partially blind with at least 10 per cent vision being preferred for this more exacting werk of turning the material over, smoothing and then securing it. After six months' training, a good hemmer averages 90 dozen a day, but a blind person could produce only half of this. At the time the plant was visited, young woman was being broken into the overlocking process of overstitching on the outside to give betmaterial to the needle, patiently first time out of their wages.

Time to Band Trees

THIS is the time of the year when Victory gardeners, shade tree owners and commercial growers should be reminded to protect their trees and vines against the ravages of tree-climbing insects whose larvae will manifest themselves later on as the worms and caterpillars which often completely defoliate trees, destroy fruit, cause serious tree damage. Banding of trees which have not been infested with a sticky substance that will retain its consistency under all weather conditions is good protection and very much worthwhile. This should be done as early as possible.

In the office of the plant, one met Ethel Heeren, blind executive secretary, and Earl Barrett, partially blind general manager. One also met partially blind Wells Mori, active little public relations officer of the plant.

Earn $25 a Week. From Mori, one learned that ambitious employees of the plant average about $25 weekly, which with their useful work, gives them position in society.

"Younger handlcapped people coming to us who are broken in early into useful social occupations, develop a healthler point of view than the older people who have always more or less been felt to be a burden." Mori said. "Sometimes, the most difficult problem is inculcating the work habit into some of the older people," Mori continued. "Laxity in coming down on time, or sometimes not at all, and of not producing at their capacity are shortcomings of many handicapped people which can only be ironed out by careful handling. since you cannot push them. "We do not take all of the handicapped, of course," Mori continued, "but most of those that we do take develop the work habit and become proficient workers.

"Because of differences in aptitudes and the need for stimulating their efforts, workers are paid on a piece-work basis," Morl said. "But even though their production rates are high, they still usually fall below the sighted standards. In those cases, our products must sell at higher levels on the market."

As an indication of the skill and earning power of many of the Illinois Industries for the Blind emplayees, some have been hired by the nation's busy war plants to assist in the battle of production, while a goodly number were only too proud to take their place in line and pay Uncle Sam an Income tax for the

Fill out the picture with WAR BONDS!

Stop a minute and think how your farm of tomor-row will look. Will it have new buildings to add to the old? New paint for the house and barn? Modern equipment and new fences? Will it be up-to-date? Comfortable? Prosperous?

Save your money now for tomorrow's needs. Thou-sands of owners and tenants will have farms and tanches to be proud of when the war is over because of the money they are saving-in War Bonds. Your farm is taking the same wear and tear their farms are. Buildings and fences and equipment are depreciating. New stock is needed. When the day comes that replacements are available—where will the money come from to pay the bill, unless you, too, are saving for them now in War Bonds? War Bonds are the safest way to save your money, because they are backed by Uncle Sam. They re the easiest way, because you can get them at bank, post office or Production Credit Association. Or your rural mail carrier can get them for you-or you can write for them yourself.

SOMETHING SPECIAL TO SAVE FOR. Those boys of ours In the Services-backing the attack for them now in War Bonds is the least we can do. But, while they are away fighting, it's up to us to he laying plans for a better peace for them to return to. Then the money you've lent to the Government will come back, for you to use on the farm. Then goodbye to worn out equipment and run-down buildings! You and your boy together can make the farm the prosperous place you want it to be. So keep a list of your future needs. And to pay for them, keep on buying Bonds!

YOU NEVER GET LESS THAN YOU LEND! And you can get 14 more than you invest. When held 10 years, Series B War Bonds yield 29% interest compounded semi-annually. You get back $4 for every $3. Of course, no one should cash a Bond unless he has to; but if an emergency comes along, Uncle Sam will redeem them in cash—at full purchase price—any time after you've held them 60 days, BUY WAR BONDS!
